Jason & Joanne's Journey

Showing Off Our Part of The World

For the last three weeks, we have been extra busy with Jason's mom here, showing her as much as we could during her short time with us. We had a lot of fun touring her around and seeing our home community through her new eyes. We introduced her to both our Gabbra friends, as well as some of our missionary friends. She visited all of the villages that we work in, and drank a few cups of tea along the way.

Easter in Hurri Hills

In her suitcase, Jason's mom brought with her supplies to make bracelets. The bracelets all have five beads. Each bead is a different colour, representing a different part of the gospel story. The Gabbra love beads and jewelry, so even the adults enjoyed making these in the villages. This craft tied in nicely with sharing the Easter story, and why we celebrate Easter.

Guyo & Galgallo Preaching

You may remember that last year we sent our worker Guyo to Bible School. He graduated in November and has been helping preach. Our other worker, Galgallo, is very social, and loves to gather people together and sing energetically. Together, they make a great pair, bringing people together and leading a time of worship and Bible teaching. This is especially helpful when we go to Nairobi for supplies, allowing the ministry to continue without us.

A Nursing License

Thank you to everyone who prayed for Joanne's nursing license. The paperwork was approved at the beginning of April. Joanne is looking forward to restarting her ministry work as a nurse.

Rain In The Hills

Over the last few weeks, there has been rain in Hurri Hills. The majority of it has come over the last week while we have been in Nairobi. People have told us that water tanks are filling up. There is now water for drinking and cooking, the grass will start to grow again for the animals, and we have water in our tanks for mixing cement when we start to build our new house.

New Friends

This girl is full of joy and loves to sing. She likes to help lead some songs and always comes running to the church with her younger sisters, ready to soak up more Bible stories.

She is just one of the new friends that Jason's mom made.

House Building Update

We arrived back in Nairobi last week to take Jason's mom back to the airport. While we are here, we are picking up some supplies for building our house. We have our windows, and Jason has been looking at prices on doors. Once we are back in Hurri Hills next week, we will start to have supplies delivered for constructing a storage building to protect our cement and other building supplies, as well as an outhouse. After that, we will start on the house.

Praise & Prayer Items

- ~ Pray for Jason as he starts to oversee the construction
- ~ Praise God that Joanne has her nursing license and can now resume helping out at the local health facility
- ~ Pray for peace and safety in Kenya as the national election is approaching in August
- ~ Praise God for rain in Hurri Hills!
- ~ Pray as we try to balance ministry and construction
